Abnormalities in the p53 gene, which is located in the fragile site 17-2A on chromosome 17p13.1, are involved in the progression of various human malignancies. Deletions and inactivating mutations of the p53 gene are recognized in specific subtypes of acute myeloid leukemia. We have examined whether there are such abnormalities in a case of acute promyelocytic leukemia. Chromosome 17 was analyzed by multiplex fluorescence in situ hybridization with a probe for the p53 gene, followed by a PCR-based sequencing analysis. Deletions of the p53 gene were observed, but no inactivating mutations were identified. Thus, inactivation of the p53 gene is not a major aberration in this case.. Switzerland In Switzerland, the term "Interiors Competition" is used by the Federation of Swiss Association of Interior Architects (FEDW/VAH) to denote the "Interior Offices Competition" (formerly known as Design Competition). It was established in 1982 to enable manufacturers and the public to appreciate and support the development of the products of design and the work of the interior professionals involved. The design and architecture professionals involved in the interpretation of the Swiss understanding of home office design are: Architects, interior designers, interior architects and interior and furniture architects. Interior designers, interior architects, furniture designers, furniture architects, and interior and furniture architects. The main rules and goals of the FEDW/VAH are: To ensure the development of the products of design and the cultural, economic and social value of the home office, and the satisfaction of the consumer. To stimulate creativity. To motivate the professional skills of the participants. To provide a forum for the exchange of information, skills and experiences. It also brings together and coordinates teams of designers, architects and object makers to find and develop answers to shared problems and concerns, to maintain professional standards, to define opportunities for professional development 6a5afdab4c

Reaching a decision at Wednesday's meeting of the All England Club board of governors would require approval of current ITF rule-making panels. Wimbledon says the proposal only stems from a desire to "optimise the finals schedule". The final of the Wimbledon men's doubles final will still be contested over two sets. The men's and women's singles final on Centre Court traditionally are contested to three sets with the men's singles winner being the man to win the most games in the third set. In the women's singles final, it is the women who typically win the third set to claim victory in four sets.
